Synopsis

Set inside Rebecca Talent, one of the country's most prominent talent agencies, the series follows four agents—Gabi (Javier Gutiérrez), Andrea (Manuela Velasco), Matías (Carlos Bardem) and Maribel (Fiorella Faltoyano)—along with their assistants and the artists who pass through their offices each day. Together they form a unique, competitive and tension-filled ecosystem that is increasingly difficult to reconcile with their own complex personal and family lives.

At the start of the story, Gabi and Andrea have been married for several years when a moment of weakness triggers a crisis that blows their marriage apart. With the relationship on hold—or perhaps over for good—Gabi must learn to rebuild his life. The reappearance of Valeria (Marta Hazas), a former friend and now a rival agent, only complicates matters.

Andrés Velencoso and Goya Toledo round out the central cast as Asier Rojas, the ambitious director of the competing agency, and Victoria Solá, Gabi's sister and Matías's wife.
